

President & Chief Executive Officer

As a snow sport enthusiast, how fulfilling would it be to have a leadership mission that is focused on ensuring the highest level of first aid support for those who enjoy this exciting recreational activity? The Canadian Ski Patrol (CSP) is Canada's leader in certifying ski patrollers and providing advanced first aid personnel to on-snow resort partners. Comprised of almost 4,500 volunteers from coast to coast in 56 zones and nine divisions, patrollers come from all walks of life. With a long history of service and a strong volunteer base, the CSP is committed to excellence and growth.

As President and Chief Executive Officer (CEO) you will be the face of the Canadian Ski Patrol responsible for managing the successful operation of the CSP and its programs. A key priority will focus on sustainability and growth potential for this non-profit organization. Utilize your expertise in financial strategy development to identify new revenue streams. Develop strategic alliances and partnerships within and outside the industry including members, resort operators, professional organizations and the public. Ensure that the human and financial resources of CSP are focused on growing this critical service. Call on your own superior listening and communication skills, in both official languages, to crystallize the viewpoints of a voluntary board.

Due to the unique job environment, it would be considered beneficial to have skiing experience along with prior experience working within a large diverse volunteer group in a complex setting requiring training and provision of services. You should have previous verifiable fundraising experience and it is desirable to have CFRE training. You have the mental energy and experience to coordinate the full range of management and operational activities and events. A high volume of activity, competing demands and priorities will require continuous attention to detail. You have a reputation for being a leader of change and for delivering results. You derive immense satisfaction working with dedicated members.
